Dear Speaker Pelosi, Minority Leader McCarthy, Majority Leader Schumer, Minority Leader McConnell, Chairman Neal, Ranking Member Brady, Chairwoman Maloney, Ranking Member Comer, Chairman Wyden, and Ranking Member Crapo:

On behalf of over 100 organizations dedicated to ending child poverty in the United States, we are writing to urge you to swiftly pass the Child Poverty Reduction Act (H.R. 1558/S. 643), led by Congressman Danny Davis (D-IL) and Senator Bob Casey (D-PA).

2021 was a landmark year for reducing child poverty in the United States. We applaud Congress for passing improvements to the Child Tax Credit (CTC) included in the American Rescue Plan Act. These improvements reduced child poverty by close to 30 percent, keeping 3.7 million children from experiencing poverty at the end of 2021.¹ CTC payments had an outsized impact on reducing poverty for Black and Latino children, many who were previously ineligible for the full credit.

Our organizations remain committed to a swift and robust extension of these enhanced CTC payments to ensure that millions of children are not forced back into poverty. The fact that these payments have yet to be extended, despite their documented effectiveness and popularity,² means there remains a lack of adequate political will to keep child poverty reduction a priority in the United States.

This is why we are calling on you to establish a national child poverty reduction target and solidify your commitment to ultimately ending child poverty in the United States.

The effectiveness of poverty reduction targets is well-established. The United Kingdom cut its child poverty rate in half between 1999 and 2008³ and before the outbreak of COVID-19, Canada had reduced child poverty by over a third since 2015.⁴ There is also growing momentum here in the United States, with child poverty reduction targets established in New York state⁵ and Puerto Rico⁶ at the end of 2021.

The Child Poverty Reduction Act would both codify a national target to cut child poverty by half in a decade in the United States as well as task the National Academy of Sciences to analyze and monitor progress towards this goal. In addition, the Child Poverty Reduction Act would improve the access to accurate and timely data on child poverty by:

- Requiring the U.S. Census Bureau to develop an anchored Supplemental Poverty Measure to use to annually track progress on child poverty and include data on children in the U.S. territories;
- Directing the National Academy of Sciences to establish a Child Poverty Reduction Strategy Clearinghouse;
- Mandating the National Academy of Sciences to update the 2019 consensus study, A Roadmap to Reducing Child Poverty, within three years.

Child poverty is a long-term problem in need of long-term solutions. The National Academy of Sciences confirms that a permanent, fully refundable child allowance delivered monthly is the most effective policy to address child poverty in the United States, but it is not the only one.⁷ A child poverty reduction target would create the accountability needed to get a permanent child allowance and other policies over the finish line and ultimately end child poverty in the United States.
